BRITISH REPORT OF ALLIES' CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, Sept. 14 [United Press].—That the army of War Office this afternoon declared that reports from Paris Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, comprising the flower of and London of German defeats in France are founded on the entire German field forces, has been driven northward erroneous conceptions of the exact situation. It is stated across the Aire River was the significant announcement of

It was stated that as a result of the flerceness of the French assault in force, the Crown Prince had been compelled The retreat of the Russian army in East Prussia appears to remove his headquarters from St. Monehould, on the to be developing into a flight accompanied by evidences of main highway 23 miles southwest of Verdun, to Montfaucon,

[Official circles explain that this movement means that German attack on Verdun must soon be lifted, as th French are advancing in force toward that fortress, and if the army of the Crown Prince is unable to mainntain its present lines the force around Verdun will have to retire or be in grave danger of capture.

They say this movement indicates a hasty retreat of the Germans toward the gap at Stenay through which the Crown Prince's army entered France from Luxemburug.]

The Bureau, discussing the other movements in France,

"Headquarters reports that all day yesterday the Germans stubbornly disputed the passage of the Aisne River. Despite the difficulties of forcing a passage of a river of this character in the face of the Germans who where holding strong positions, the allies had gained nearly all of the crossings by sunset.

Germans Are Falling Back All Along the Line, Is French Report

BORDEAUX, Frence, Sept. 14 [United Press].-The War The most extended list of German casualties yet published has been made Office at 3.30 this afternoon issued an official communication public here. It comprises 784 killed, 2,190 wounded and 814 missing. The which declares that the German retreat continues at all points.

The statement says that the Germans had prepared a line of defenses north of the Aisne and in the vicinity of Rheims, where they had attempted to rally their forces and make a stand, but the overwhelming strength of the French pursuit forced them again to retire.

The official statement follows:

"First-On our left wing the enemy had prepared, to the District-Attorney, and he established for the first line a co-ordination of purpose between the police heads and the District-Attorney's office.
